DOROTHY DIX Hard Bargain

Dear Miss Dix: I am fast approaching middle age. My husband and I have lived very happily for years. He has been equipped within the next 30 days. All freight trains in the central Kansas, southern Kansas and Colorado divisions will be radio controlled.

The court order also authorizes $1,500,000 for the construction of a new freight station in St. Louis to replace two stations which have been in operation since 1879 and 1888 respectively.

Another $218,000 was earmarked for traffic control and improvement on tracks between Mill Springs, Mo., and Poplar Bluff.

of the world's finest, devoted to me, the children and home. Several weeks ago while in a distant city he went with some men friend to a night club and he said that they danced and drank with some of the show girls. I tried to make him promise that he would never do so again, but he refused. Said that he lived too narrow a life and there was no harm in what he did. I feel that I cannot face life without him and that I cannot live with him unless I retain my respect. What shall I do?

Answer: You certainly are making much ado about nothing. For what has your poor husband done that has got you so hot and bothered? He has been to a night club. Well, if every man in America who has been to a night club got divorced for his crime, Reno would be working overtime.

No Treat For Girls
And he danced with a show girl? Show girls aren't poison. Most of them are honest, hard-working girls who are hired to dance with strangers that they never saw before and never expect to see again. And it is no treat to them to dance with some middle-aged married man who hasn't been on a ballroom floor since his first baby was born, and who is heavy and clumsy and steps all over their feet.

So do try to see how silly you are in getting in a panic over something your husband did that had no wrong in it except what you put into it yourself, and how foolish you were to make an issue of an episode that you should have laughed off. Think of the heartburnings and reproaches and accusations and quarrels that you would have been spared if you had just been interested in your husband's night out in the city and had accepted it as the perfectly normal occurrence that it was.

And try to realize that your making scenes about it had only one result. It has made it seem ten times more glamorous and fascinating than it was. In reality, night clubs are dull and tiresome places for settled, middle-aged, domestic men who are devoted husbands and fathers, as your husband is. Once or twice is about all they want of it.

Dear Miss Dix: I am a merchant in a small town in which I know practically everyone and my business depends upon the way I treat my customers. I am not in the slightest degree interested in any woman except my wife, but when she sees the same woman in my store a few times or when a woman she does not know bows to me, she is furiously jealous and wants to know how it is they all know me. She also resents the contributions to my women customers' charities and says that I can help every one else, but never have time to help her with anything around the house. What shall I do?

A MAN IN NEED

Answer: I suppose you have told her a million times that her prosperity depends upon your popularity with women, and that every woman in your store means just that much more money for her to spend. If you have tried to make her see that, a merchant's success depends upon his being persona grata with women, who do almost all of the buying, and she still persists in remaining so green-eyed that she cannot see it, there is nothing else that you can do except just make up your mind to let her take her spleen out in nagging you or else to leave her.

It is incredible that any woman could have little enough sense, as well as heart, to permit her jealousy not only to ruin her husband but herself. For she also goes down in the ruins when she wrecks him by her folly.

Dear Miss Dix: What do you think is a father's duty to his children after they are all grown up and married? I gave mine college educations, set them up in business, in which they made no effort to make succeed, and paid the debts they contracted. I was left a widower, lonely and without a home and I married a widow who has made me very happy and comfortable, but my children resent my marriage. They think that all of my money should go to them. Have I no right to my own?

A FATHER

Answer: I think you did exactly right in marrying and that your children have no right to ob-

Truck Firms Told to End Boycott

Little Rock, Feb. 21 (AP)—Fourteen trucking firms have been ordered to end a boycott against the Arkansas Express, Inc., a Pine Bluff firm with terminal headquarters in Little Rock.

The order issued yesterday by Pulaski Chancellor Frank Dodge in a temporary injunction which said the truckers must continue business relations with Arkansas Express, whose union employees are on strike.

The company charged that stoppage of transactions with other firms was influenced by Local No. 878, Chauffeurs, Teamsters, Warehousemen and Helpers Union (AFL).

Arkansas Express explained that its employees received a contract Feb. 4, 1949, covering wages, working conditions and provisions for settlement of grievances.

The firm said members of the union violated that contract when they struck last FEB.

A spokesman for the union denied the charge and said that W. D. Howard of Pine Bluff, company president, had refused to bargain.

Certainly the man who makes his own money is entitled to spend it as he pleases. A father who has supported and educated and helped his children get a start in life has done his duty by them financially, and it is up to them to take care of themselves.

gain with the union as the other 14 truckers had done.

The petition said the Arkansas Express collection of fees in an interchange of business with other firms accounted for part of its income.

The boycott has cut off the revenues from this source, the petition said.

necessary to fairly apportion the limited acreage available for this purpose. Those filing after the deadline will not be eligible for consideration for a cotton acreage allotment in 1950.

The Federal Crop Insurance Program in Arkansas is being expanded to make cotton crops available to producers in Pulaski county and insurance on general crops is being offered to producers in Arkansas county for the first time in the counties in the state in the crop insurance program was made by C. S. Dupree, state director for the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation in Arkansas, who stated that the crop insurance program for the past few years has been operated on an experimental basis with more counties being added as the program develops. The experimental program was started in 1948 with cotton insurance available in seven counties in the state. They were Chicot, Desha, Lee, Crittenden, Lawrence, Faulkner and Hempstead counties.

PIN-WORMS MAY BE A FAMILY AFFAIR

Fidgeting, nose-picking and a tormenting rectal itch are often tell-tale signs of Pin-Worms... ugly parasites that medical experts say infect one out of every three persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, these pests must not only be killed, but killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do... and here's how they do it:

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredients go right to work—kill Pin-Worms quickly and easily.

Don't take chances with this dangerous, highly contagious condition. At the first sign of Pin-Worms, ask your druggist for genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge... the small, easy-to-swallow tablets suggested by famous Dr. D. Jayne & Son, specialists in worm remedies for over 100 years.

"1949 was a year of completion and commencement on the Big Inch System

Texas Eastern's program to raise daily natural gas delivery capacity to 508,000,000 cubic feet was completed last Spring, and a new program to increase capacity to 740,000,000 cubic feet daily was begun. This new expansion of our pipe line system was substantially complete by the end of 1949.

"The Inch Lines are now serving gas utility companies in eight states from Missouri to New York. Increases in deliveries and the addition of new customers have been reflected in earnings. Texas Eastern's gross revenues in 1949 were $45,036,062, and net income was $7,278,313, or $1.58 per share of capital stock. Gas sales totalled 161.8 billion cubic feet for the year, and gross plant investment rose to $197,937,327. "Besides expanding its facilities, Texas Eastern completed a general plant betterment program which included the re-location and replacement of some valves, the building of masonry fire walls and metal compressor buildings, and the installation of automatic equipment for maximum safety and efficient operation. "We are planning to expand and extend our system in 1950 and 1951 to provide natural gas service for New England. If these plans are approved by the Federal Power Commission, our capacity will be increased once more to furnish about 250,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas daily to the Northeast."

The GMC "Triple Chevelle" used truck emblem is your guide to a better buy.

The word is spreading—and fast—that light-medium GMCs for 1950 are the best buys in the whole light-medium field! There are plenty of reasons why these new GMCs offer even better performance and greater economy than the quick-stepping, money-saving GMCs of the past. They're easier riding, easier driving... improved to provide more comfort for the driver, more profit for the owner on every score. Last, but far from least, they are products of the General Motors division that's the world's largest exclusive producer of commercial vehicles—that has, in addition to its own ultra-modern facilities, full access to the unparalleled GM research and proving operations that continually work to make "more and better things for more people."

Emma Catherine White and Echols Locke's Nuptials Held Sunday

Beautiful in its simplicity was the wedding of Miss Emma Catherine White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Allen White of Pine Bluff, and Walter Echols Locke, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Echols Locke, Sr. of this city, Sunday afternoon at three o'clock in the Central Church of Christ in Little Rock.

The minister of the church, D. D. Woody, read the impressive single ring ceremony before an improvised altar of baskets of gladioli, iris, and greenery.

The bride was attired in a navy tissue faille afternoon dress with navy and white accessories. She pinned a gardenia at her shoulder.

Mrs. Jess H. Smith of Little Rock, aunt of the bride, was matron of honor. She chose a navy gabardine suit with blue accessories and a corsage of blue carnations.

Olen "Rusty" Jones of Hope, served the bridegroom as best man.

Immediately following the ceremony, the couple left for the wedding trip after which they will make their home on North Washington street, in Hope, where the bridegroom is the manager of the Toggery Shop.

The bride is a graduate of Watson Chapel high school near Pine Bluff, and attended Harding College, Searcy, Ark. The bridegroom graduated from Hope high school and attended the University of Oklahoma and the University of Houston. He served 25 months in the navy with 18 months overseas duty.

TECH PINS ALL

Hope for Title
 on Single Game

By The Associated Press
 Arkansas Tech is spinning all its hope for the 1950 AIC basketball crown on one game.
 And that will be played at Jonesboro Tuesday night when the Wonder Boys journey to the home
 camp of second place Arkansas
 State.

Tech can sew up the title by winning that game. But the Wonder Boys, winners of a previous meet with State, will have a tough battle on their hands as the Indians always are tougher on the asphalt court they have at home.

Should Tech drop that game it still has the best chance to take the championship. Victories in any two of the other three remaining conference games would do the trick.

The Wonder Boys increased their conference record to 18 straight wins by drubbing Arkansas college 78-58 at Batesville Monday night.
 Tech jumped into an early lead but had stiff opposition up until mid-way of the second half. The visitors gained a wide margin after Arkansas college's high scorer,
 Harry Neff, fouled out of the game.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler
 Copyright, 1949
 By King Features Syndicate.

An unusual intervention by several ardent lawyer-politicians of the Roosevelt cult occurred in the legal marital dispute between Earl Miller, the retired New York state trooper, and his pretty young wife, Simone. They are ex-Governor Charles E. Poletti, Milton Diamond and Harry Hooper.
 Miller had been assigned to the governor's mansion in Albany
 when Franklin D. Roosevelt moved in on January 1, 1929. He was handsome and soon became a court favorite of Eleanor Roosevelt, continuing as such throughout her Washington reign and afterward. In her latest book she wrote:

"When Earl Miller left us, he gave me his horse, D.T."
 There is other evidence that Miller was an unusually well-to-do state trooper.
 Miller had been married twice before. The second marriage was a Roosevelt family hoe-down in the old mansion at Hyde Park. He married Miss Simone Van Heaver in Pensacola, on June 23, 1941, and bought a house near the naval station where they lived. Mrs. Miller's reputation is spotless.
 Miller soon was transferred to Floyd Bennett Field, near New York, and his wife went back to Albany. When the war was over, he got a pension from the state police and both pension and high disability from the navy, altogether about $4,000 a year. He had a house in Loudonville, with a swimming pool in the garden and a lot of furniture from Mrs. Roosevelt's van kill factory. John Glavin, Mrs.
 Miller's attorney, who owned a Loudonville house himself, says
 Miller's place was worth about $45,000. Glavin entered the situation in October, 1946, when Mrs.
 Miller came to him with a shiner
 and a well on her neck. She said Miller had misbehaved otherwise and told Glavin she wanted a divorce. Glavin got in touch with Jacobs and Glavin are Democrats.
 Jacobs is a member of the O'Connell machine. Glavin is a bit of a crusader. Mr. Jacobs' reputation is good.
 Glavin said Jacobs soon told him Harry Hooker was taking an interest. Hooker was F. D. Roosevelt's law partner many years ago and he was a house-pet of the grand regime.
 Next, Glavin says, sometime in November, Malvina Thompson, secretary to Mrs. Roosevelt, called on Mrs. Miller in Loudonville. Glavin says Miss Thompson scared Mrs.
 Miller and left the young wife in fear of trouble for pursuing her rights in court. Subsequently, Mrs. Miller switched lawyers and got a legal separation after a sensational hearing. She recently told me that she felt that she didn't get a square deal in court. She seemed not to be certain of her rights and I, too, gathered that she was afraid.
 Mr. Glavin says he got a summons from Miss Thompson to call on her at apartment 6-A, 29 Washington Sq., West, N. Y. The let-terhead read "15-A," which has been scratched out and "6-A" written in.
 Contrary to a well-cultivated political superstition that Mrs. Roosevelt lived in a garret in Greenwich village, she had a large apartment of seven big rooms. Miss Thompson had the mate to it, nine floors down. The housing shortage death lightly with them.
 Mr. Glavin says he called on Miss Thompson on Dec. 23. He says
 she was very aggressive and used the word "blackmail." He seems to have been dead-pan about it.
 Was it blackmail of a wife to hail her husband into court for alleged misbehavior? Was it evidence of a criminal design to seek due process even though the imperial will desired otherwise?
 Glavin says that early in Jan-

SPORTS ROUNDUP

New York, Feb. 21 —(AP)—At least one Brooklyn holdout, that of left fielder Gene Hermanski, appears to be the real thing. Gene says he will go to Vero Beach on March 1 for a final showdown with Branch Rickey, and if no agreement is reached will turn right around and go back to Ft. Lauderdale to sit out. The New York Giants, having divested themselves of much excess sweat by sale and trade,
 are passing up the Buckhorn baths near Phoenix this spring already. They claim that $14,000 already is in the till for the Ezzard Charles-Freddie Beshore heavyweight title bout at Buffalo a week
 from tonight.

Joe Dobson, Boston Red Sox
 pitcher, told a Hartford gathering
 the other night that Yogi Berra of the Yankees is the toughest man in the American league to pitch to.
 "He's dangerous because he'll hit anything he can reach," Dobson explained. "If he can reach it he's apt to slam it a mile." Word received here from the West Coast is that the Rose bowl contract with the big ten will be renewed for another five years. . . . Coat grid bugs do not like the clause which prevents a mid-west team from playing at Pasadena oftener than has proved a fine deal.

uary, 1947, he, Jacobs and Poletti discussed Miller's assets. Glavin said Poletti told him Miller held about $20,000. Early in February, Poletti came up with assets of $37,000 or $38,000. About the end of February, Glavin says, Poletti
 admitted that Miller was worth $40,000. And, still quoting Glavin, Poletti privately mentioned to him
 $50,000 as a point of discussion.
 Poletti went to Europe, so the next two consultations brought his partner, Milton Diamond, into the picture.
 Glavin says Diamond was very abusive. He denied that Poletti could have hit upon $50,000, but Glavin recently showed me a letter in which Poletti did acknowledge that amount, though not as an offer.
 But what were Poletti and Diamond doing in this mix-up between a state cop and his wife? They are seniors in the firm that F. D. Roosevelt, Jr., joined after the war.
 They have had a lot of other Roosevelt connections and familia-tions.
 I asked Jacobs, pointblank.
 "I don't know that he (Poletti) represented anybody," Mr. Jacobs said. "Insofar as my knowledge is concerned, he acted as a negotiator between Glavin and myself. Poletti wasn't the first attorney in it.
 Hooker was first. I received a call from Poletti's office to see what he could do to effect a compromise between the parties. He didn't say whom he represented.
 I didn't ask him because I was glad to have his help in effecting a result."
 "Diamond didn't say whom he represented. The only time I recall when Glavin is talking about being abused, the abuse, as I recall it, was for demanding 75,000
 when the figures showed that Miller couldn't raise more than $40, 000 or $50,000 tops."
 Hooker and Diamond have refused in writing to say who they were their client. Poletti did not reply, possibly because he is in Switzerland.

Costumes Wore in New Orleans

New Orleans, Feb. 21 —(P)—Cleo and Marie Antoinette go on crowded city bus early today, dressed in seven cents each. And on a strap all the way to the street.

They drew only scanty admiring glances for today is Mardi Gras. Almost everyone is costumed. They are few sleepy-eyed early risers. They are many all-nighters and the thunderous din of shouting, tramping, singing and shuffling blended into a giant cacophony.

The reveling throng was thick at the river end of Canal street where at 9 a. m. (CST), King Zulus parade in mask grandeur as his royal Mississippi river barge begins the organized festivity. The dusky monarch and his Negro king parade in mask grandeur as his barge on the white Rex's pomp and pageantry.

Zulu himself, like his forebears, does not let a schedule worry his parade. It meanders off course all day long and stops at innumerable bars to quench the king's historical thirst.

Rex, lord of misrule and emperor of the carnival, has proclaimed that the 600,000 Orleanians and their 100,000 guests frolic untrammelled until midnight ushers in the solemnity of the lenten season.

British to Name Choice Thursday

London, Feb. 21 —(P)—Conservative Leader Winston Churchill claims his call for high-level talks with Russia on atomic control has campaign issues for British elections Thursday.

But Prime Minister Clement Attlee continues to base his Labor party's appeal for re-election on domestic policy. He is standing on his record and asking the people for a new term to "get you along the rest of the road" to recovery.

Attlee mentioned briefly, however, his own party's international policy as "trying to build up not only in this country but in the world the kind of conditions that make for peace."

Scorning the view of his Labor party opponents that the subject of big power talks to end the cold war should not be raised at election time, the 75-year-old Churchill said yesterday in Manchester that the working class should be called upon to vote on this as well as domestic issues.

He said his original appeal last week at Edinburgh for an attempt at reaching lasting East-West settlement had "not only dominated the election in Great Britain" but also had "rolled around the world and may have reacted a new situation which, whatever happens, cannot make things worse and may possibly bring us nearer to our heart's desire."

In the solemnity of the lenten season.

End of a Chapter

XXVI
MURIEL HALLECK'S brows, thin arcs, lifted. "This isn't the first time you've taken a lot on yourself, Alice, my dear. With Rick and—Oh, it doesn't matter. But as for having to, I didn't. I simply saw no reason why I shouldn't. Brent is a very interesting personality. I thought so when I married him."

"But to—to crucify him in a novel!"

Muriel slapped the table. "Oh, bosh! That's stupid and melodramatic. You'd think I was vivisectioning Brent Halleck in Grand Central Station. Look here! Thousands of people will read the book. But only a handful could even vaguely suspect that I might have had Brent in mind."

"But Brent himself will be terribly hurt. And Chuck Wisner and Molly Tremayne..."

Muriel held up a hand. "Please! Let's not enumerate the local nonentities." She waited a second, then nodded. "Yes, it's time I told you. I hadn't meant to, just yet. But you're forcing me. You may as well know, Alice, that I'm finished with all this around here."

"I do know," Alice said slowly. "You're stopping off at Reno on your way to California."

"Why, yes," Muriel smiled. "But it's interesting that you're so well informed already. Still, Brent would have talked to Chuck. Damon has no secrets from Pythias. And Chuck, having nothing better to do, gossips like an old woman."

"He didn't exactly gossip. He... Oh, Muriel, what are you doing? Divorcing him, you're 'why-ing' me to death. But if you must know, I've been out of love with Brent for a long time. Years, even. I—I bypassed him ages ago. And now he's a definite drag."

"A drag?" Alice repeated the words in the form of a question.

"Yes, a drag." Muriel's eyes narrowed into bright slits. "And I can't afford drags and excess baggage. I've got things to do and I intend to be free to do them whenever and wherever I see fit. I don't want to be chained to a neck of land in a dull part of New England with a husband who can't make the grade in his profession. And with a child that isn't even my own. It's the—the end of a chapter. Do you see, Alice? Just like in a book—the end of a chapter!"

THE hard, measured words struck Alice like a succession of blows. She felt herself step back involuntarily. Then she spoke:

"I'm not going with you to California, Muriel." The calmness of her words surprised even Alice herself.

Muriel shrugged. "Suit yourself. I'm sorry, though. You're a good secretary, Alice, but in your—er—present condition it wouldn't make sense, would it?"

"My present—"

Alice suddenly checked herself. She was confusedly conscious that Muriel was inwardly laughing at her. Now Muriel visibly smiled.

"Don't look so stunned, Alice, darling. I know darn well that you've fallen, at least halfway, for Brent. And who am I to blame you, considering that I too fell for him once? I did think, though, that it was just propinquity and that getting away from him for awhile would straighten you out. But now I see that you're beginning to carry a torch."

Somehow Alice brushed aside Muriel's words and managed to meet the woman's cool, smiling eyes. "And you—you don't care?"

"Good grief!" Muriel exclaimed, almost testily. "Would I be likely to talk this way if I really cared?"

When I said I was finished—through with Brent—I meant finished, Alice. Finished in every way."

Strangely, the finality of Muriel's assertion, her definite renunciation of Brent, gave Alice Fine no satisfaction. It simply meant that Brent Halleck had been discarded by his wife—the famous writer. He was the next thing to free.

Yet it didn't and couldn't matter to Alice.

Alice moved to the door slowly. She had to restrain herself to keep from flinging it open and rushing out of the room.

"I guess, then, we've said all there is to say," Alice hesitated at the doorway. "But if you think I'm going to run to Brent the moment you've gone and he's free, you're mistaken, Muriel. I—I don't want to see Brent Halleck again—ever!"

"No?" Muriel sounded mildly surprised. "Not even after I've practically given you a green light? Well! Now, if I may have a 'why' for a change, why not?"

Alice looked steadily at her from across the room.

"Because of something Brent did once. Something terribly cruel. Something that I'm trying to forget."

Muriel opened her mouth, but Alice was gone. Alice had rushed from the room finally. The desire to leave had come suddenly and overwhelmingly. It was a desire to put as much space as possible between herself and the Hallecks, both Muriel and Brent.

Alice Pine left Grosvenor Point that evening, while mauve shadows gathered over Long Island Sound. Muriel said a brief and somewhat amused goodbye as Alice left.

This Tells How to Fill Form 1040-A

(Editor's note: This is the eighth of 12 stories explaining who must do what and how about his 1949 income tax return.)

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Feb. 21 —(P)—This explains the use of form 1040-A in making your 1949 income tax return.

Just answer the questions on the form and send it to the internal revenue collector. Don't send any money with it. He'll figure your tax for you.

If he finds you owe any money, he'll notify you. You have 30 days after he notifies you to pay up. If he finds you have a refund due because too much tax was withheld from you. He'll send it to you.

Do you have any doubts whether you can use form 1040-A? This is the rule for using it:

Your total income in 1949 must have been under $5,000 and all of it—except for no more than $100 untaxed income in wages, interest or dividends—must have been in wages or salary from which full tax was withheld during the year.

If you don't fit that rule, even though your income was less than $5,000, you can't use form 1040-A. You can use the 1040 short form where you find your own tax in a table on the back.

If your income was $5,000 or more, no matter what kind of income, you can't use either form 1040-A or the 1040 short form. You can use only the 1040 long form and figure your own tax.

Example: You had $4,000.99 total income. All but $100 of it had been in wages or salary from which full tax was withheld. That other $100 was in untaxed wages, interest or dividends. You can use form 1040-A.

If that other untaxed income—in wages, dividends or interest—had amounted to $101, even though full tax was withheld from the rest of your income, you couldn't use form 1040-A. But, so long as the total income was less than $5,000, you could use the 1040 short form.

And, even though your income was under $5,000, if any of it came from things like rents, or fees or farming, you couldn't use form 1040-A. You'd have to use the 1040 short form.

Since—in order to use form 1040-A you must have had all, or nearly all, the tax withheld from you in 1949—you should have receipts from your boss showing just how much SEAMS FAIR ENOUGH — Happy with her new title of "Miss Midnette (seamstress to you) of 1950" is Elaine Paudeau, young Paris fashion designer. Her election as seamstress queen coincides with the opening of the Paris spring fashion showings.

tax he withheld and turned over to the government.

Everyone who had taxes withheld should have such a receipt from his boss. It's called form W-2 a withholding statement. Some people will have more than one such receipt because they worked for more than one boss during the year.

In sending in your filled-out form

1040-A, you must attach a copy of each form W-2 given you by your boss or bosses.

On form 1040-A watch the questions about your being blind or 65 in 1949. Be sure you make the correct check mark.

Every person filing a return gets a $600 exemption. But if he was blind in 1949, he gets an extra $600 exemption, and if he was 65 in 1949, he gets still another $600 exemption.

And each person filing a return — if he wife files jointly with him, or if she had no income — gets a $600 exemption for her, plus another $600 if she was blind in 1949, plus another $600 if she was 65 in 1949.

(You get only a $600 exemption for a dependent and no extra $600 because the dependent was blind or 65 in 1949).

Be sure, though, that you list every person you can justly claim as a dependent.

A dependent is a close relative who received more than half his support from you in 1949 and whose income, if he had any, was less than $500.

The rest of the problem of filling out form 1040-A is simple. And be sure—if you're making a joint husband-wife return — that both of you sign it.

For more detailed explanations on the problems of deductions, exemptions, and husband-wife filing on form 1040-A, see previous stories in this series.

Tomorrow using the 1040 short form.

Preacher Seeks Rehearing of Life Sentence

Attica, N. Y., Feb. 21 —(A)—The Rev. George Hetenyi, serving 30 years to life in Attica state prison for the murder of his wife, wants to appear before an ecclesiastical court convening in Dallas, Tex., April 10.

In a letter to Federal Judge John Knight in Buffalo, Hetenyi said yesterday the church court might deprive him of his clerical status and thus prejudice a possible new trial. The clergyman is appealing his conviction on a second degree murder charge.

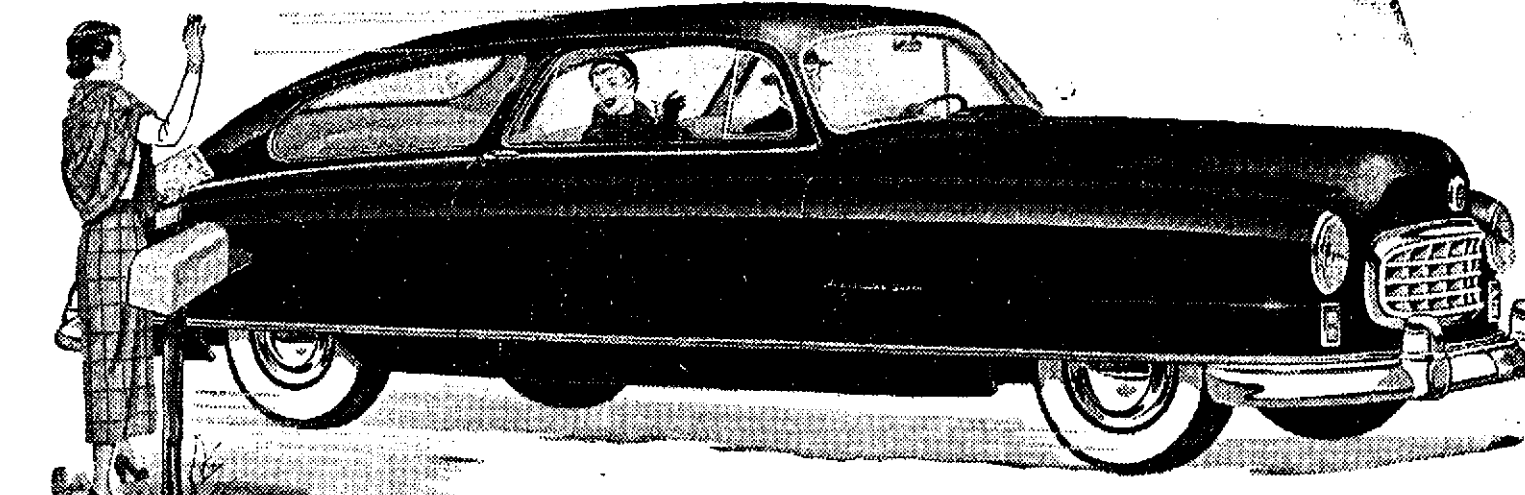

sible new trial. The clergyman is appealing his conviction on a second degree murder charge.

Judge Knight replied that state courts have jurisdiction and he plans no action at this time on Hetenyi's request to have Warden Walter Martin ordered to produce him in Dallas.

Hetenyi served as a supply minister in western New York Episcopal churches. His wife, Jean, was shot and dumped into the Genesee river at Rochester last April.
